

Real Brands. Real People. Real Marketing.

Marketing • Caddy Collective Culture Campaign Project

Day 1 & 2 — Build your campaign | Day 3 — Present it

Groups of 4-5 • Google Slides available for you

Sentence requirements are in red. The minimum is the floor — not the ceiling.

Meet the Brand — Caddy Collective Culture

Caddy Collective Culture (CCC) is a premium golf accessories brand founded in 2023 by Collin Jenkins out of Dublin, Ohio. Limited-edition headcovers, ball markers, divot tools, and now grips — every piece is designed in small batches with a level of craft most golf brands don't bother with.

What makes CCC different: they don't chase trends. They build things with intention — blending high-end design with real golf culture. Every drop tells a story. The brand has grown to 25,000+ Instagram followers in three years, landed officially licensed Ohio State collabs, and is still independently owned and operated by one person who genuinely loves the game.

Here's something worth knowing: Collin became a genuinely good friend during a really hard time. We connected while going through chemotherapy. The fact that his brand is now part of this class means something. Treat this project with that kind of respect.

The work you do here could actually be seen by him. Bring your best. 🔥

The Product — The Garsen Putting Grip

The CCC x Garsen Quad Tour Putter Grip ($39) is a real product — CCC's first official performance hardware collaboration. Built on Garsen's trusted Quad Tour platform, it's engineered for players who want modern stability with a traditional hand position.

Here's what makes it special: the four-sided angled profile naturally turns your elbows in, sets your shoulders back, relieves arm and shoulder tension, reduces excess wrist action, and promotes a shoulder-driven putting stroke. The result is a more repeatable, consistent putting motion.

Read everything about the grip here before you start:
caddycollectiveculture.com/products/garsen-grip

Your job is to build a mini marketing campaign for this grip — but not for everyone. Each group has been assigned a specific audience of golfers who deal with a real physical condition that affects how they hold and feel a golf club.

Great marketing doesn't speak to everybody. It speaks directly to somebody. Your campaign needs to make that one specific person feel like this grip was made for them.

Group Assignments

Find your group below. This is your audience for the entire project.

Group 1 — Neuropathy

Nerve damage causing numbness, tingling, and loss of feel in the hands. Common in cancer survivors and diabetics. 🗨️ Come talk to me — I deal with this personally.

Group 2 — Arthritis

Joint inflammation causing daily stiffness, pain, and reduced grip strength. Millions of golfers over 50 manage this quietly and keep playing anyway.

Group 3 — Weak Grip / Reduced Strength

Loss of hand strength from aging, injury, or recovery. These golfers are still in the game — they just need equipment that works with them.

Group 4 — Sensory Processing Issues

The brain processes touch differently, making something as simple as gripping a putter genuinely difficult. Consistency in equipment matters more than ever.

Group 5 — General Aging Golfer

The everyday golfer over 60 — less flexibility, less strength, less feel, but still out there every weekend. Still competitive. Still loves the game.

Group 6 — Carpal Tunnel

Nerve compression in the wrist causing pain, weakness, and numbness. For golfers dealing with this, 18 holes can be a real battle.

PART 1 — Know Your Audience

Day 1 — Do this before anything else.

Before you can market to someone, you have to understand them. Research your assigned condition and the golfer who lives with it every day.

What is your group's condition and how does it affect someone's hands and grip?

Look it up. Understand it. Explain it like you're describing it to someone who's never heard of it.

 Write at least 4 sentences.

Who is the golfer in your campaign? Describe them.

Give them a name, an age, a life. How long have they been golfing? What does their round look like now compared to before? Make them real.

 Write at least 4 sentences.

Why would the Garsen putting grip specifically help this person?

Think about what their hands need — more cushion, better feedback, less pressure, more control. Connect those needs to what a quality grip provides.

 Write at least 3 sentences.

PART 2 — Build the Campaign

Day 1 & 2 — Three elements, one clear message.

Every group builds a mini marketing campaign using three elements of the Promotional Mix. Your campaign must have one consistent message — something your target golfer would actually connect with.

Element 1 — Advertising

Create a Canva advertisement for the Garsen grip targeted specifically at your audience. This could be a social media ad, a magazine ad, or a poster.

Your two Canva marketing materials count as your advertising deliverable — reference them here in your slides.

Explain your advertising choices — why did you write that headline? Why those visuals?

Walk us through your thinking. Good advertising is intentional.

 Write at least 3 sentences.

Element 2 — Personal Selling

Write a personal selling script for a sales rep at a golf shop who is recommending the Garsen grip to a customer who has your group's condition.

Write the script — include the opener, how they identify the customer's need, the pitch, handling an objection, and the close.

This should read like a real conversation. Use what you know about personal selling and the sales process.

 Write at least 5 sentences.

Element 3 — Sales Promotions

Design a sales promotion specifically to get your target golfer to try the Garsen grip for the first time.

Describe your promotion — what is it, how does it work, and why would it appeal specifically to your target golfer?

Think about what would actually motivate this person to try a new grip. A discount? A free trial? A bundle? Make it fit the audience — and make it something CCC could realistically run. No million dollar giveaways 🤔

 Write at least 4 sentences.

PART 3 — The Presentation Slides

Day 2 — Build these in Google Slides or Canva.

6 slides. Each one needs real written content. Your Canva ad goes on Slide 1 and your campaign should tell one consistent story from start to finish.

Slide 1 — The Hook

Your Canva ad front and center. Your group's assigned condition and target golfer introduced in one powerful sentence.

 At least 2 sentences of written content — not just bullet points.

Slide 2 — Know Your Golfer

Who is your target golfer? Paint the picture. Make the class feel like they know this person.

 At least 4 sentences of written content — not just bullet points.

Slide 3 — Why This Grip Changes Things

Connect the Garsen grip's features directly to what your golfer needs. This is your core argument.

 At least 4 sentences of written content — not just bullet points.

Slide 4 — The Ad

Walk us through your advertising choices — headline, visuals, tagline. Why does it work for THIS person?

 At least 3 sentences of written content — not just bullet points.

Slide 5 — The Pitch & The Promotion

Present your personal selling script highlights and your sales promotion. How do they work together?

 At least 3 sentences of written content — not just bullet points.

Slide 6 — Why This Campaign Works

Zoom out. How does your campaign speak to your golfer better than a generic ad ever could? End strong.

 At least 4 sentences of written content — not just bullet points.

PART 4 — Present on Day 3

Each group gets 3-5 minutes. Walk us through your campaign like you're pitching it to Collin Jenkins himself — because your teacher might actually show him the best ones.

Every person in the group speaks. No hiding behind the slides. Talk to us like you believe in what you built.

How You're Graded

HIGH GRADE — The Full Project (out of 100)

Audience Research (Part 1) — 25 pts

Canva Marketing Materials (Part 2) — 25 pts

Personal Selling Script + Sales Promotion (Part 2) — 25 pts

Presentation Slides (Part 3) — 25 pts

TOTAL — 100 pts

LOW GRADE — Presentation Only (separate grade out of 100)

Show up. Present. Talk through your campaign. That's it. Easy grade — so just do it.

I truly am so proud of you. Great job. 🙌